Election Site Surveys

Cost-effective solutions for polling place accessibility

Ask about audit poll, a phone-based survey tool.

Call on our expertise to review your polling place for ADA compliance and identify cost-effective, pragmatic solutions.

Overview

It's best not to wait until the election is close at hand (or the Department of Justice comes calling) to review your polling place sites for compliance. Last minute remedies can be difficult (and expensive!) to make. Our team of election experts, advocates, and attorneys can either quickly survey your polling places for ADA compliance or review completed surveys — freeing your staff to focus on the election itself.

Process

We'll walk through your election sites with a facility representative and review everything from entrances to signage against the most up-to-date version of the DOJ's "ADA Checklist for Polling Places" and your state's election requirements. We'll take measurements where necessary and document the survey with photographs. We'll also inventory your current election equipment and supplies, so we can recommend how best to use the ramps, signs and/or alert systems you already have on hand.

Election Site Surveys

Once the site survey is completed, Inclusion Solutions will provide you with a report that highlights:

- Where your sites meet access criteria
- Where barriers to accessibility exist
- Recommendations on how to correct any violations
- A proposal detailing necessary products, as well as blueprints for placement

Meeting your election supply needs since 2000.

Choosing the Right Ramp

Slope and Size: Ramps used for persons with disabilities should ideally have a maximum slope of 1:12 — one foot of ramp length for each inch of rise (exceptions exist). Ramps for steps greater than 6" must have handrails.

Width: Ramps used for new construction, for curbs, and where situations allow should be at least 36" wide. Narrower ramps (e.g. 32") are acceptable in certain circumstances such as within a door frame less than 36" wide.
